Analyses with the McMaster technique (counting of eggs) have been conducted on 111 samples, whereas the Baermann technique has been conducted on 30 samples. The aim is to identify and quantify parasites and compare with previous screenings. This is a master student project, and the work is being conducted at Veterinary Institute. remaining feces samples and the abomasum samples will be analyzed during winter 2018-2019.

Pasteurella: Tonsils from 2017 (n=36) have been investigated for the presence of Pasteurella bacteria (cultivation) &ndash; no Pasteurella isolated. Sub-samples have been taken for PCR. The same procedures are now being conducted for the 2018 samples. A novel PCR is being designed in an attempt to detect Pasteurella-specific DNA in tonsils (i.e. more sensitive test than cultivation).

Viruses: Samples from semi-domesticated reindeer in Norway (2017 and 2018) have been investigated for several virus infections, with the following prevalence: Alphaherpesvirus CvHV2 (48 %), Gammaherpesvirus (8 %) and Pestivirus (32 %). Analyses for Bluetongue and Schmallenbergvirus were negative.

Investigations of the 2017 wild reindeer samples from Iceland were negative (same panel as above), with the exception of two seropositive reindeer for Pestivirus. The same analyses will be conducted for the 2018 samples from Iceland.

This project has several interdisciplinary links. This research project is about infectious diseases in reindeer in Norway and Iceland, and how they might be linked to climate change. In addition to screening for diseases and disease pathogens (parasites, bacteria and viruses; VI and UiT), we also investigate traditional knowledge and how this is transmitted between reindeer herders (NINA, Norut). Further, the work in Iceland has been conducted in cooperation with the biologists and ecologists at East Iceland Nature Research Centre. The link to CLINF in the Nordic countries and Siberia also has interdisciplinary aspects, since the samples generated from this project is made available to CLINF, including how reindeer diseases may impact Northern societies. Through the field work (Norway) we also have direct contact with the involved reindeer herders.</dd><dt class="elbudget_in_accordance_to_results
